

Dear HENNGE Recruitment Team,

My name is Sanzhar Kazakstan and I'm a 20-year-old Computer Science first-year student at the University of Szeged. I believe in progress — not merely as an intellectual notion, but as a calling.

In life, we fantasize about two selves: one that avoids trouble and stays still, and another which invites suffering, survives failure, and pushes forward nonetheless. Each day, I struggle to be the latter — the self who will fail 50 times but still rather stand up for the 51st. That is the spirit I want to bring to HENNGE.

Even though I'm only beginning my academic path, I've learned that people don't get better by accident — they get better by fighting for it, by failing and learning from it. True growth is not measured by how close I am to the success of someone else, but how far I've come from where I started. And I want to continue moving forward with your group.

Backend development speaks to me because it shares the same behind-the-scenes structure I like in life: what happens behind the scenes is what really works. I enjoy thinking in systems, building logic, and seeing the result of invisible work. I am excited to learn from HENNGE's engineering culture, and especially — to test myself in it.

Thank you for the chance to apply. I don't have the most experience of the applicants, but what I can promise you is this: I will do my best to grow, give back, and change — technically and humanely.

Sincerely,

Sanzhar Kazakstan
